Description

Hello, my name is Chase Burns and I am currently 19 years of age and a student at Modesto Junior College. This is my third year showing at Agfest, first year with market lambs. In the past I have shown a wide range of animals from horses, to dairy cattle as well as market goats. Over the years I have obtained a large amount of knowledge about livestock and farm like animals which I have now found a love and passion for. Over this past year I have used up my electives to be able to take agricultural classes at Modesto Junior College while I was attending, ranging from dairy cattle judging last semester to now this semester trying sheep fitting and showing. Each year starting fresh has been hard but learning the ins and outs of different species is something I have always been fond of. This year my sheep project was one I am very excited to offer at Agfest since I have spent countless hours and days working hard at the school farm in preparation for our show. Towards the end of my college semester I attended the livestock jackpot event in Merced where I took home top 10 this year. With everything being shut down this year I was still able to obtain the knowledge and prepare my sheep as best possible for Agfest.
