Description

I bought Serengeti back in October of 2020. He's a black Simmental. At the time he weighted 680 pounds. He had a gentle manner and with a bit of patience and time I was able to halter break him. We started off just walking around in his pen. He didn't like to hold his head up high while walking so I had to continuously hold the halter up high while walking him so he became use to that stance. We moved on to walking out in the field. He likes munching on the tall grass and eating the leaves off of our cherry trees. Walking him into the chute is not a problem because he knows he is going to cool off with a bath. He feeds well and has gained weight at a consistent pace. I'm looking forward to showing him in the arena.
