Description

I received my lamb January 30th, and he was very stubborn and weighed roughly around 75 pounds. I named him Wesley which he grew fond of, everytime you call his name he responds. Months passed and we've trained and grew closer together, he weighs about 143 now. He works hard to receive the right muscle. We worked for about 1 hour and a half nights and weekends, I walk him before every feeding so he isn't out of shape. Through out this experience with working with a wether lamb I now know what it takes to train a market lamb to its finest.
