Description

Hi, my name is Emily Cooper and this is my market goat Jango. He is a boer goat and weighed 88 pounds on May 29th. This is my second year raising a market goat and participating in AgFest. Although this year has been very different from my past experience, I have still thoroughly enjoyed it and learned a lot. Since March, I have been working very hard with Jango everyday, making sure that he is healthy and well fed and taking time to work on our show ring skills. This day to day care taught me the importance of time management, patience, and hard work. My favorite part about raising Jango was watching his personality develop. When I first got Jango, he was shy and unsure about me and his new home. As time passed, he got more and more comfortable with me to the point where he joyfully runs up whenever he sees me and calls out to me if he can hear my voice. He is such a sweet and silly goat and I'm so glad that I got the opportunity to raise him! While I will be sad to see him go, all the money that I receive will go towards college where I am planning on attending UC Davis with a major in Animal Science.
