Description

Hi, my name is Owen Collinson. I've been part of the Anne Arundel County Livestock Auction for three years, but this is my very first time raising and auctioning a market goat. Let me introduce you to my partner in this adventure: Alvin.

Alvin is a traditional Boer goat with a personality that's just as big as his name. He was born from a set of triplets—Alvin, Simon, and Theodore—so of course we had to name them after the famous Chipmunks. The fun part? Alvin's mom was actually one of my fellow 4-H-er's projects from last year! My cousin bought her at this very auction, so Alvin is truly carrying on the "family" tradition.

Because Alvin is on the younger side for a market project, we've worked extra hard to make sure he's thriving—lots of exercise, careful feeding, and plenty of attention (which he demands loudly and often!). And trust me, Alvin lives up to his name. More than once, you could hear us yelling "AAAALLLVVVIINN!" across the pasture as he stirred up trouble—whether it was pestering the lambs, sneaking through fences, or hollering for snacks.

Alvin is full of life, energy, and charm. He'd make an unforgettable dinner for your family—or, if you're brave, even a hilarious farm pet who will keep you on your toes. Either way, one thing's for sure: our farm is going to feel much quieter without him around.

The money I earn from selling Alvin will go right back into future 4-H projects, and I'll also be paying my mom back for her support in helping us improve our pasture. I want to give a big thank you to last year's buyers, Jess Hardy, Fowler Farm and T&C, for your continued support of me and the auction.

So, if you're ready for a goat with heart, humor, and a whole lot of personality, raise your paddle for Alvin—he's ready to steal the show (and maybe your heart, too)!

Quantity: 67
