Description

My name is Julia Fry, I live in Acampo, California, and I currently attend Lodi High School as a Sophomore. I am in the Lodi High FFA program, and this will be my third year raising a market swine animal as a SAE project. I have currently been taking an agriculture class as my science at Lodi High School, Agricultural Soil science and chemistry. I am 16 years old, and I would like to further my practice of responsibility and learning how to raise and make a profit from an animal and build these skills to help me in a future career. This year I am raising a Yorkshire sow as my SAE project for Lodi FFA. I purchased her from Paul Fernandez, a breeder out of Ceres, CA, on February 22 of this year. She was born in December of 2019. I named my pig GiGi, because it fit her quiet well. She is very friendly, and loves to root in the soil when on walks. She has developed some spots around her butt, and ears making her look almost like a cross. She has a very straight and muscular back with a great ham, and I work with her on a weekly basis to keep her muscling. He has been gaining about one pound per day and should weigh about 270 pounds by the time fair as it may be virtual. Raising GiGi has been an exciting, challenging and big learning experience for me, because pigs are very smart making it always a challenge. I have learned to be much more responsible and patient as these animals do test your patience.
