Description

Meet Dumbo, my Suffolk lamb. When I first got him, in late January, he was about 50 pounds. In our first days he would get frightened very easily, he would be jumpy whenever someone was near. Once I noticed it was going to be hard for him to be comfortable I knew I had a lot of work to do. At first he didn't want to eat that much, because he was still very scared, so he wasn't gaining weight as fast as the others. He was always the smallest of the group but I stayed persistent. As I gained his confidence and he got used to me feeding him, he began to gain weight more rapidly. Now he eats very well to the point that he gained 3-5 pounds every week! Now he is no longer one of the smallest. After raising him for about 4 months he has definitely changed a lot.
